Independent.

WHOLE NUMBER, 377.

An incessant downpour of rain for ten successive days has done incalculable damage to the crops in many parts of Germany. In some districts the harvest is completely ruined. The grain crops of all descriptions, which by this time should have been nearly all harvested, lie rotting in the field. The disaster is all the greater and more disappointing, since for seventy years past Germany had not had the promise of so abundant a harvest as that of the present year.

The idea that a person must have all he makes to get rich has ruined more persons than it ever made respectable and useful members of society. No more pitiable objects can be found in any community than the men that hoard up all they make and live only for self.

The farmers both in Montgomery and neighboring counties were complaining, that owing to the dry spell the corn crop was likely to be very poor, the stalks short and the ears undeveloped. After the heavy rains of Saturday night and Sunday there will be no further cause of complaint in that direction.

On the premises of Henry Snyder, in Greenwich township, Berks county, near Dunkel's church, there is a grape vine the trunk of which measures 2 feet 4 1/2 inches in girth, and is believed to be the largest in the county. Mr. Abram D. Reiff, one of our most enterprising and public spirited men, deserves especial praise for the good gravel walk which he has placed all along his property. This is a move in the right direction, and if three other property holders whose names need not be mentioned, would follow Mr. Reiff's example, we would have a passable good side-walk from Trappe to Collegeville Station. The above mentioned property holders are hereby requested to do their part like their neighbors.

Abraham Moyer, living near Grater's Ford, met with a serious accident on Monday afternoon of last week. He was returning from Grater's Ford with a load of sawdust, when the board upon which he was seated slipped, and threw him on the wagon tongue. This frightened the horses and they ran away. Mr. Moyer was thrown to the ground and one of the heavy wheels of the wagon passed over his face and left shoulder, breaking his lower jaw and very nearly severing his right ear about the body. Dr. A. G. Coleman, of Limerick, was summoned, and the injuries attended to. He narrowly escaped with his life.

PERSISTENT DELEGATES.

THE LANSDALE CONVENTION FAILS TO NOMINATE A CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS, AFTER TAKING SIXTY THREE BALLOTS.

CONVENTION ADJOURNED TO MEET AGAIN MONDAY SEPTEMBER 4.

Monday morning, at 11 o'clock, Freed's Hall, Lansdale was jammed with human freight made up of the ardent followers of the different Congressional aspirants, party workers, red-hot partisans and independents. Of the sixty-two delegates from Montgomery and the fifty-seven from the lower end of Bucks one hundred and eighteen answered to their names. Green Lane this county was unrepresented. The candidates for delegates in Norristown township and in the Second ward of Conshohocken on the votes were each admitted with half a vote. Permanent organization was quickly effected by electing Samuel F. Gwinn, of Taylorsville, Bucks county, chairman, and Charles E. Cuffel, and E. Wesley Keel, of Bucks, vice presidents, and William F. Solly and Louis M. Childs, of Montgomery, secretaries. Then the usual committees were hurried out of the way and the candidates for Congress brought out. The nominations were made in brief speeches as follows: Dr. L. Newton Evans, of Hathorby, of Edmund G. Harrison, seconded by Rev. George Hand, of Hathorby; Captain William Remyson, Bridgeport, by Benjamin Thomas; Joseph E. Thropp, Lower Merion, by Chester L. Smith; William Godshalk, of Bucks, by Herman Shutt; H. K. Weand, of Norristown, by Alfred S. Miller, of North Wales, and Colonel Theodore W. Bean, Norristown, by George N. Corson of same place.

Balloting was at once begun, and the first ballot resulted: Weand, 32; Evans, 33; Thropp, 26 1/2; Bean, 6; Remyson, 4 1/2; Godshalk, 15. The second ballot increased Weand's vote by 1, Evans by 2 and Thropp by 1 1/2. Remyson lost 2 1/2 and Bean 1, Godshalk holding his own. At the end of the second ballot an hour and a half's recess was taken for dinner. At two o'clock the convention reassembled and took twenty-two more ballots without effecting a nomination. Weand took the lead on the twenty-first ballot and maintained it until adjournment for supper at 6 o'clock. The last ballot before supper was: Weand, 37 1/2; Evans, 35; Thropp, 27 1/2; Bean, 3 1/2; Remyson, 1 1/2; Godshalk, 15.

The convention got together again at seven o'clock and the twenty-fifth ballot resulted: Weand, 35 1/2; Evans, 34; Thropp, 31 1/2; Godshalk, 15; Bean, 1 1/2; Remyson, 3. In the next four ballots Weand ran up as high as 38 1/2, Evans got up to 37, Thropp varied between 34 and 27 and the rest about held their own. Weand and Evans ran neck and neck and any change in a delegate's vote was lustily cheered. The excitement did not abate. Everybody was keeping tally. On the thirty-fourth ballot Weand had the most votes from each county, and Alfred S. Miller appealed to the sense of the convention to nominate Weand, but this brought no votes to Weand. After the thirty-eighth ballot the convention refused to adjourn until morning. After the fortieth ballot a motion was carried to allow five minutes after each ballot for consultation.

The balloting continued all through the evening. Several attempts to adjourn were made, but the delegates were firm. On the forty-fifth ballot Weand had 37 1/2; Evans, 37 1/2; and Thropp, 30 1/2. On the forty-ninth Weand jumped up to 38 1/2, Evans had 37 and Thropp had 30 1/2. And thus the ballots ran, only varying two or three votes. The fifty-first ballot was reached just before midnight, when Weand and Evans each had 38. Another attempt at adjournment was voted down, and at midnight the convention continued its weary balloting.

At 1:10 a recess was taken for half an hour for consultation and lunch, after which six more ballots were taken. The balloting proceeded without any material change or unusual interest. The delegates were tired and sleepy, and so were the officers. Sleeping delegates had to be aroused to record their votes. A solemn stillness hung over the drowsy convention until after the sixty-third and last ballot was announced. The ballot stood: Weand, 37 1/2; Evans, 36 1/2; Thropp, 27 1/2; Godshalk, 15; Bean, 1; Eekman, 3. There was but little change from the preceding ballots. It was very evident that none of the prominent candidates could be nominated, and no new man could safely be nominated on the spur of the moment. Therefore Edmund G. Harrison's motion to adjourn until Monday next was carried by 65 yeas against 51 noes, and at 3:25 the convention adjourned. The Norristown delegates were conveyed home in a chartered train.

The Bi-Centennial.

As the time draws nearer for the celebration of the landing of Wm. Penn, the preparations are progressing more rapidly. It is estimated that on the first, or civic day, there will be at least 25,000 participants, including about 8,000 old firemen of the city and State. Fifty firms and factories have already signified their intention to parade on Trade Day, and at least 500 will be responded by the day fixed. It is believed that 50,000 men of all branches of industry, with their tools, looms, machinery, and appliances, will be in line on that day. On the Musical Day at least 2,500 to 3,000 musicians will be on the platform, including Welsh and German societies from all parts of the Union, and $1,200 in prizes will be distributed. For the regatta on the Schuylkill $1,500 has been contributed. On October 27th, 10,000 soldiers of the State and visiting organizations, and 10,000 members of the Grand Army of the Republic, will take part in the grand military pageant.

The new house lately erected by G. W. Zimmerman, near Collegeville, and which is now receiving the finishing touches, is a model of completeness in every respect. The excursion to Fairmount Park by Augustus Lutheran Sunday School, this place, last Saturday was largely attended. The scholars of the school received free tickets. This was a liberal act. The members of the congregation turned out well and packed the cars at Collegeville. There was only one hitch in the programme and that was rather a serious one. Several of the scholars were sent to Yorkes and Oaks Stations to dispose of tickets. About thirty were sold, and the holders anxiously awaited the train. The train came right along and went right by—owing to a slight misapprehension on the part of one of the railroad managers. The money was refunded to the purchasers of the tickets, and of course a number of people were disappointed. This was a very provoking occurrence. The young men who sold the tickets will no doubt steer clear of similar responsibilities in the future. The large number of people accompanying the excursion spent a pleasant day.

FAIL PLOWING.

A great advantage may be derived from fall plowing, especially if the ground is low and liable to be wet in the spring. Such ground should not be plowed to wet. The frost and snow will act all winter in tearing the particles of pressed soil asunder, but in moderately heavy or clayey soil the effects of wet plowing will be noticeable for years after, no matter when plowed or under what circumstances.

Fall plowing has a tendency to make the ground mellow, cause less weeds to grow, especially is this the case where the ground is low and wet.

Heavy clay soils are injured far more if plowed wet the middle of October, than if plowed in the same condition late in November. In the former case the sun and rains harden the surface, while that plowed later is quite liable to be acted upon by frost before it is acted upon by the air and sun.

We believe that when manure is hauled on corn ground in the fall, it is better to be plowed down immediately than to be left until spring either spread or in heaps. There are perhaps many farmers who differ with us in this opinion, but it is at least, of sufficient importance to demand their earnest consideration. We say it is better for two reasons, first, when the manure is spread in the fall and lays on top all winter, much of its fertilizing element is wasted by evaporation or carried away by water from heavy rains.

Whereas, if plowed down the acids and gases arising from decomposition are all retained in the ground, the earth being a powerful absorbent, and this ready to be taken up by the plant the next spring. The scent noticeable from recently spread manure, is a gas which contributes largely to the growth
